Job Satisfaction of Teachers of Students who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing Study

Teaching is one of society’s most important occupations. Currently, teachers of students who are deaf or hard of hearing are experiencing a variety of workforce challenges. The University of Northern Colorado is conducting a study on the perceptions of teachers of students who are deaf or hard of hearing regarding the factors that positively and negatively affect their ability to do their jobs well. We want to identify the aspects of the job that are enjoyable. Simultaneously, we want to identify the barriers that hinder teachers from being able to deliver high-quality services. We think that it will be possible to recommend changes in teacher preparation programs as well as to develop quality professional development training opportunities by identifying variables that contribute to or detract from job satisfaction.

Please consider taking a few minutes to complete the survey and pass it along to other teachers of students who are deaf or hard of hearing you know.

The link for the survey is: https://unco.co1.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV_1N9MTfXGb0v8zz

Those who complete the survey will be entered into a drawing for a gift card.

Thank you in advance for your assistance in making this study a success.

John Luckner, Ed.D
John.luckner@unco.edu